No more ocean giants will be built, it is said, until there are larger ports to accommodate them. By and by the ocean will need enlarging.

Not to be outdone by the exarrogant Kaiser William comes out with a proclamation announcing that hereafter the Berlin fire engines need not stop to salute him.

Radium is said to throw off heat continually without loss in bulk or energy. As the price is $800,000 a pound, nature seems, in this case, to be in league with the coal barons.

With Russia canceling and assuming peasant's taxes and England lending money to Irish tenants to buy their homes, it looks as if more progress toward the brotherhood of man were being made than has been recorded for some time.

A Pittsburgh firm is about to begin the manufacture of bricks from furnace slag. Such bricks have been made in Europe for some time, and are found to be a valuable building material, almost fireproof, and ornamental on account of their soft gray color.

The lyrical poets of Germany, we are informed, by cable, have formed a union, or trust, or syndicate, or something of the kind, and have established a minimum price below which the muse steadfastly refuses to inspire. The new union is about 79 strong. All its members have agreed not to accept less than half a mark (12 cents) a line.

Within the last few months the women of the country districts of the United States have found a new occupation in the government service. Some hundreds of them all over the country have been appointed rural letter carriers, and the reports to the department show that the women have done wonderfully well in their new occupation.

It is an interesting fact that George Wyndham, the member of the British cabinet who introduced the new Irish land bill, the most important Irish event since the defeat of Gladstone's home rule bill, is a great-grandson of that Lord Edward Fitzgerald who forfeited his life for the Irish cause and who ranks with Robert Emmett as an Irish hero.

The finding of young Moses Fowler Chase, of Indiana, in a private sanatorium in Paris naturally leads one to wonder how many other mysterious disappearances of Americans could be solved by an investigation of foreign lunatic asylums. It may be true, as asserted, that young Chase is insane, but the possibility yet exists for the happening of such occurrences as Charles Brade describes in "Hard Cash."

The spring is hardly here, yet the man who thinks it funny to rock the boat has begun operations. Five men were in a boat on Bass lake, near Ogdensburg, the other day when one of them began rocking the boat. Result—four of the men, including the one who did the rocking, were drowned. The tragedy should be a warning to would-be humorists, but it is doubtful if such proves to be the case.

A New York paper, noting that Gen. Miles will make his future home in Boston, says he went from that city to the war as captain of a company. As a matter of fact, he should have been captain because of the men he recruited for the company, but he appeared so young that Gov. Andrew gave him only a first lieutenant's rank, but he soon after got a captain's rank and then the colonelcy of a New York regiment.

An American has invented an envelope which records of itself any attempt to tamper with its contents. The flap is imbued with some chemical composition which when operated on by a stamping process or any other means of penetrating to its enclosure records the transaction by causing the words "Attempt to open" to appear. It is thought that the invention will find its way into the hands of investigators in the face of such an invention.

A caldron says that Count and Countess Walden, of Germany, will sail during April for a visit to the United States. The count is field marshal of the German army and has been 22 years of service, and his wife is an American woman, who has had more to do with German politics than any woman of her time, and is said to have more influence with the present Kaiser than any other woman at the court of Berlin. Though not a diplomatic one, their visit will have some international significance, and be very pleasant, no doubt.

The beginning of work under the national irrigation law marks a departure of great importance to the people of the west. It means the most determined attempt yet made to rescue the arid and semi-arid lands of that region and turn them into areas of rich productivity. And that means largely increased opportunity for settlers to gain a livelihood and a vast addition to the productive industries of the country. It is stated that five projects, to cost $25,000,000, have been authorized by the secretary of the interior.

A census of China has been completed, though necessarily many districts are merely estimated, as it is impossible to get an actual count of all the people in the interior. The total population of the celestial kingdom is placed at 426,000,000. China remains far in the lead of all other countries as regards number of inhabitants, and is steadily gaining. India comes next, having 292,000,000 population. Asia is the most thickly populated of all the continents, as it has over 800,000,000 inhabitants, or considerably more than half the total for the world.

THE PRESIDENT.

He is Greeted by a Large and Enthusiastic Crowd in Minneapolis—Discusses the Tariff Question.

Minneapolis, April 6.—The biggest, most tremendous, most enthusiastic reception ever tendered any man in the Twin Cities was that to President Theodore Roosevelt Saturday. From the time the president arrived in St. Paul at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon till his departure from Minneapolis at 11 o'clock at night for the west, he was the recipient of a continual oration, the streets through which he passed in both cities being a solid mass of people and armory hall, at the University of Minnesota, being crowded to its limited capacity.

The weather was ideal and temperate. Houses and residences all along the line of march were profusely decorated, and colored lights were burning at all down-town street corners.

The speech which was upon the tariff and reciprocity brought out much enthusiasm, the president treating extensively of the Cuban situation, declaring that we must have military control of Southern waters and saying that the United States is the most prosperous nation ever known.

Even thousands of persons marked the route of the private electric cars that brought the distinguished guest and party from St. Paul.

Perhaps 200,000 persons, altogether, saw him in the two cities, although his auditors were limited to the capacity of the armory in Minneapolis and legislative hall in St. Paul, the space in front of the capitol building and about 1,500 students in university chapel.

TALKS OF THE TARIFF

The President's Views on the Principle of Protection.

Speaks of Question of Revision in General and in Specific Instances—Amendment of the Cuban and Philippine Schedules.

(Delivered at Minneapolis, April 4.)

My Fellow-Citizens:

At the special session of the senate held in March the Cuban reciprocity treaty was ratified. When this treaty goes into effect, it will confer substantial economic benefits alike upon Cuba, because of the widening of her market in the United States, and upon the United States, because of the equal widening and the progressive control it will give to our people in the Cuban market.

In the first place we offer to Cuba her natural market. We can confer upon her a benefit which no other nation can confer; and for the very reason that we have started her as an independent republic and that we are rich, prosperous and powerful, it behooves us to stretch out a helping hand to our feeble younger sister.

In the next place it widens the market for our products, both the products of the farm and certain of our manufactures, and it is therefore in the interests of our farmers, our merchants and wage-workers.

Finally, the treaty was not merely warranted but demanded, apart from all other considerations, by the enlightened consideration of our foreign policy. More and more in the future we must occupy a preponderant position in the waters and along the coasts in the region south of us; not a position of control over the republics of the south, but of control of the military situation, so as to avoid any possible complications in the future.

Under the Platt amendment Cuba agreed to give us certain naval stations on her coast. The navy department decided that we needed both two, and we have specified where these two are to be. President Palma has concluded an agreement giving them to us—an agreement which the Cuban legislative body will doubtless soon ratify.

Equally important was the action on the tariff upon products of the Philippines. We gave them a reduction of 25 per cent, and would have given them a reduction of 25 per cent, more had it not been for the opposition. In the hurried closing days of the last session, of certain gentlemen who by the way, have been representing themselves both as peculiarly solicitous for the interests of the Philippine people and as special champions of the lowering of tariff duties.

The present phenomenal prosperity has been won under a tariff which has been made in accordance with certain fixed and definite principles, the most important of which is an avowed determination to protect the interests of the American producer, business man, wage-worker and farmer alike.

The general tariff policy, to which, without regard to changes in detail, I believe this country is irrevocably committed, is fundamentally based upon ample recognition of the difference between the cost of production—that is, the cost of labor—here and abroad, and of the need to see to it that our laws shall in no event afford advantage in our own market to foreign industries over American industries, to foreign capital over American capital, to foreign labor over our own labor.

In making any readjustment there are certain important considerations which cannot be disregarded. If a tariff law on the whole worked well, and if business has prospered under it and is prospering, it may be better to endure some inconveniences and inequalities for a time than by making changes to risk causing disturbances and perhaps paralysis in the industries and business of the country.

One point we must steadily keep in mind. The question of tariff revision, speaking broadly, stands wholly apart from the question of dealing with the trusts. No change in tariff duties can have any substantial effect in solving the so-called trust problem. Certain great trusts—great corporations—are wholly unaffected by the tariff. Practically all the others that are of any importance have as a matter of fact members of smaller American companies; and of course a change in the tariff which would work injury to the large corporation would work not merely injury but destruction to the smaller competitors; and equally of course such a change would mean disaster to all the wage-workers connected with either the large or the small corporations.

We have prospered marvelously at home. As a nation we stand in the very forefront in the giant international industrial competition of the day. We cannot afford by any freak of folly to forfeit the position to which we have thus triumphantly attained.

Yonacant Piled in America.

Harry Harrington, son of Captain Austin Harrington of Chicago, is one of the youngest pilots on the great lakes, reports the American Day. He is 12 years old, and during last summer stood at the wheel of the Harry Watson, which runs as a ferry from Marquette Park to Ottawa Beach. He is hardly big enough to look over the wheel that he turns. Although the boat during the summer carried more than 20,000 passengers, the boy never had an accident. He takes his boat alongside the dock with the skill of a veteran.

"Remember," said the judge to the prisoner, "that you are not obliged to incriminate yourself."

"And what's more, your honor, I don't have to," replied the victim of circumstances. "The opposing witnesses are paid to do that."—Chicago Daily News.

TRADE REVIEW.

Volume of Business is Favorably Affected, Except in South, by Good Weather.

New York, April 4.—H. G. Don & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: "Another week of good weather has brought out a large volume of business, many manufacturers receiving urgent requests for immediate shipment. Floods have caused serious losses at a few points along the Mississippi and traffic was interrupted on railways in that vicinity, but on the whole the freight situation is more satisfactory than at any previous time this year. Quicker transportation has relieved the fuel pressure and the industrial situation would be unacceptably favorable were it not for the prevalence of labor disputes. Railway earnings in March increased 120 per cent, over last year's, and 211 per cent, as compared with 1901. During the month of March prices of commodities, as measured by Don's index number, declined to $22.67, as compared with $101.667. This decrease is only seasonal and is about the same as occurred in the corresponding period last year. Less interruptions from fuel scarcity and traffic congestion has produced a most desirable condition of activity in all departments of the iron and steel industry, but the structural workers' strike threatens to restrict consumption and provides the only menacing factor.

"Failures this week in the United States are 172 against 211 last week, 520 in the preceding week and 167 the corresponding week last year, and in Canada 18, against 26 last week, 20 the preceding week and 22 last year."

Bradstreet's says: "Retail trade is expanding, favored by springlike weather, and jobbers report orders from retailers increasing, while collections note some improvement. Some price reductions are to be noted, particularly in raw coal, pig iron, copper, coffee and sugar on the Atlantic seaboard. Flour is slightly higher on the excellent export business. The industries, particularly iron and steel and lumber, are active the country over. The spring crop of strikes is equal to the average, though most of them have appeared a trifle earlier, particularly in the building trades. The activity in lumber is a notable feature just now, the only complaint being of deliveries not being sufficient to meet current demand."

THE MEXICAN RIOTS.

Eight Persons Were Killed in the Affray at Monterey on Thursday.

Monterey, Mexico, April 4.—Thursday's riots which, according to latest reports, resulted in the death of eight persons, two policemen and six civilians, and the injury of 20 others, and which was due to political capital being made out of the celebration of Gen. Reyes' victory, have not resulted in any further disturbances. The cause of the riot is directly attributable to the cry of "Death to Reyes," which was raised by a young man, said to be a student. No sooner had the cry been raised than a policeman who stood near drew his revolver and instantly killed the man thus precipitating the trouble. The authorities have, by prompt action, brought about quiet through the city, and no further trouble is expected to grow out of the affair. A full confidence is expressed in the ability of Gen. Reyes to master the situation.

LAWYERS ACCUSED.

Several May Be Disbarred from Practice at Washington Because of Post Office Scandal.

Washington, April 4.—Some of the persons conducting the investigation of the post office department say that one of the prime causes of the scandals in the office of the attorney general for the department was the rascality of lawyers in this city who have conducted a big business with "get-rich-quick" firms, promising them immunity from punishment by the department. So far as has been ascertained there was no collusion between these attorneys and those in the attorney general's office, but the investigation of this matter is continuing. There is no punishment for these outside lawyers except that of disbarment from practice before the department. This, however, is severe, as by courtesy all departments disbar any attorney who has fallen from grace before any one of them, and he finds his living gone so far as Washington is concerned.

Strike Ends.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 4.—Friday afternoon the plumbers signed an agreement covering the next three years, and today 1,900 men who have been on strike for three days will return to work. The plumbers demanded a minimum wage of $2.50 a day and the enforcement of a rule that only one apprentice be employed in any shop. The agreement concedes $2.50 a day to the men, but fixes that figure as both the maximum and minimum wage for the next three years.

Talbot Shot.

Chicago, April 4.—James Farrell, a former convict, was shot and killed by Policeman John Payton, of the Fifth street police station. Farrell was caught by Payton attempting to force an entrance into the home of J. Allen White, 2633 Indiana avenue.

Result of a Family Row.

Deadwood, S. D., April 4.—Thomas Hawyard shot and killed his brother-in-law, Thomas Horn, during a quarrel over family matters at Maitland, a mining camp near here. Both were well-to-do. Hawyard gave himself up to the authorities.

Junior Murdered.

Peoria, Ill., April 4.—John Porter, the junior at the high school, was found early Friday morning in the basement of the building lying in a pool of blood with two bullet holes directly over the heart. The discovery was made by the wife and daughter of the dead man.

Barge and Men Lost.

New London, Conn., April 4.—The tug Sweepstakes, just arrived here, reports the loss of the large Hittipatuck off Long Island. The barge's boiler blew up and the men immediately with it.

Notice To Advertisers.

From this date on the rates printed below will govern the advertising matter published in the columns of the New North.

The circulation of the paper has steadily grown and with its growth the expense of keeping it up to its standard has increased. Labor and materials necessary to properly issue the publication are more expensive than ever and the rates and present system of advertising which has prevailed in the past have resulted in loss to the paper.

Existing contracts, covering advertising for the current year, will not be affected by the change in rates.

ADVERTISING RATES.

For a full advertisement, for a period of three months or less, twenty cents per column inch for each insertion. For a six month contract, fifteen cents per column inch for each insertion. For a yearly contract, ten cents per column inch for each insertion. LOCKED UP FOR ROBBERY.

Joe Wons, Chairman of the Town of Sugar Camp, Arrested.

Falling to furnish bonds in the sum of $1000 Joseph Wons, a member of the county board of supervisors from the town of Sugar Camp, is in detention pending an examination on a charge of larceny preferred by W. T. Stevens of the Stevens Lumber Co. Wons was brought down from Sugar Camp Tuesday by Under Sheriff H. Dolan. His examination was postponed for two weeks by Municipal Judge Browne, bonds being fixed as above noted.

From the complaint it appears that Wons was logging on a contract with the Stevens Co. and found a check for $200.00 to Joseph Mann and endorsed it himself by signing Mann's name.

Wons was defeated by eight votes for chairman of his town the day of his arrest, his opponent being E. R. Tripp.

Surprised on Eve of Departure West.

A number of the neighbors and friends of Mrs. George Newton surprised her and her daughter last Saturday evening by visiting her in her home. The occasion for this was the departure of Mrs. Newton and the young ladies to join Mr. Newton in Washington.

Baskets of dainty things to eat were taken along with the visitors and in other ways as well the evening was rendered as pleasant as a farewell can be made. During the evening Rev. Whitte presented several articles of silverware to the hostess on behalf of her many friends.

The journey west was begun Wednesday morning. The Newtons were followed by the best wishes of the entire community.

County Board Increases.

Hereafter the Oneida County Board will be composed of seventeen instead of fourteen members, as has been the number in the past. The increase is caused by the forming of the towns of Cassin, Linton, and Crescent, each of which will now have a representative. This change will then leave the body with six members from the city and eleven from the county.

No matter how long you have been ill, nor how poorly you may be today, Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine you can take for purifying and enriching the blood. Don't doubt it; put your whole trust in it.

Ask your doctor what he thinks of this grand old family medicine. Follow his advice and we will be satisfied.

"Where I'm not sleepy, not why do you please me?"
"Was this the youngster said when caught with drooping head."
"I'm wide awake. Just see why can't you let me be?"
"And he looked at him."
"To check his closing eyes."
But still they close in spite of his most pious efforts.
And he is heard to say:
"Why, this is only play."
One effort more he makes:
Once more his eyes he takes.
And tries, by god's attack.
To drive the said man back.
He nods, but still denies.
That sleep just won't be his.
Though on his mother's breast.
His head at last rests.
His protest is feeble grow.
But he will not let go.
Still drooping his head.
"Oh, I don't sleep yet."

P. Mixley, Nightwatchman

By WM. H. OSBORNE.

P. Mixley was a private watchman, and a good, all-around sort of a man. At least that's what P. Mixley always said. He didn't have to prove it, either—he admitted it. Mixley was a man who watched, not one place, but 25 or 30. The scene of his operations was in an aristocratic dwelling-house district of the town. He was employed by the owners of the 25 houses—each man paying him as much. If you paid him, your house was watched; if you didn't, it wasn't, that's all.

"You know what these cops is, sir," explains Mixley, with copious explanation: "they're everywhere when they ain't wanted, and nowhere when they is. Mixley's everywhere all the time, sir. Not for a matter of five dollars a month or so."

But the conservative resident shakes his head and moves on. Nobody will break in his house, for it is on the corner of a street, and besides, there's nothing in it worth stealing. So he makes up his mind not to employ Mixley. But Mixley, who thinks maybe he can land this man—the twenty-sixth—concludes that he'll send him a sample of his wares. Accordingly, the twenty-sixth man's family is awakened suddenly that night, by Mixley, who has discovered that the cellar door is wide open. This bit of disinterestedness on Mixley's part makes a favorable impression on that twenty-sixth man, and Mixley gains another customer. But the twenty-seventh man, and the twenty-eighth, and the rest of them up to an even hundred, ignore Mixley altogether.

Nothing happens—nothing much. Burglars a few, that's all. But Mixley is such a good watchman that the burglars confine themselves entirely to the houses that Mixley doesn't watch.

"They dasent tackle my places," says Mixley, with a threatening shake of the head, "not by a darn sight, an' they know it." But the burglars still continue at other places—Hallowell, Blenkinsop, Jones, Thomasson—none of these are exempt and none of these, as luck would have it, employ Mixley.

"Twice running, now," said Mr. Hallowell to Mr. P. Mixley, "these fellows have entered my place—and got a whole lot, too. Both times we were out, too. Everything looked up tight. But they broke in. Don't know what to make of it. The people next door have never been touched. But then, they—"

"Employ Mixley," quietly completed Mr. Jones. "Exactly. Of course they do. So am I going to. This is the age when everybody must pay for protection. So must we. We must pay the power that rules to protect us from the powers that prey. And for that reason I'm taking on P. Mixley."

Mr. Hallowell repeated, "Good Lord!" he exclaimed. "Do you mean—?"
Mr. Jones laughed quietly. "Exactly," he continued. "It's a good trick and a safe one. Mixley is the head of the gang—the rubber baron of the bandits. Pay Mixley and he keeps his hands off—that's all. But if you don't pay him, you're a marked man. See?"

Mr. Hallowell said. He was one of the men who had refused Mixley's advances. He was a large, broad-shouldered man, was Mr. Hallowell, one of athletic tendencies, and a man who was at home nights, and he had concluded

GOVERNMENT IRRIGATION.
Thousands of Farms Reclaimed from the Arid Lands of the West.
The far-reaching plans for irrigation of the arid west through the assistance of the powerful national government are slowly turning into facts, says the Minneapolis Journal. that Hallowell was a good enough watchman for Hallowell's place. But this was a new one on him. And he figured out a little scheme.
"I'll get up a test case," he remarked to himself, "the outsiders versus Mixley, and see what comes of it."
One night at dusk the watchman was skimming noiselessly along in over-shoes, when a large, burly figure darted out of the shadow and laid his hand on Mixley's arm. Mixley turned quick as a wink, and turned his light upon the man's face.
"Lordy, cully," said the man, "don't do that. I want to see you. I'm a new one to you. You're Mixley, ain't you?"
Mixley smiled and nodded. "Yep," he replied, easily, "what's up?"
The other man shifted around a bit uneasily. "Say, here," he blurted out, "what's it goin' to cost me to do a turn here and there in this neighborhood? I'm a quiet sort of party and they won't never catch me, and they won't ever know you put me on. You put up half a dozen good houses, and I'll go whacks with you, fair and square—better'n the other fellows. What're you got that ain't on your list?"
Mixley smiled again. "Well, I don't know," he returned. "I like your looks, and if you're on the square, why— I'll say, here, he continued, "I don't write nothing down. You keep the place in your head, see? And you whack up every time, see? If you don't, you know what comes. I'll be Mixley after you good and strong, don't you forget." The other nodded uneasily, but reassuringly. "I'll play you fair," he returned.
"Well, then," said Mixley, "I'll give you a job at a time. Take this Hallowell place on the corner—it's a good haul, lots of stuff, and Hallowell himself is a great big coward. You'll have no end of an easy time. And for the next—"

"Yes," responded the burglar, eagerly, "the next—"

"Humph," responded Mixley, "that's enough—one at a time. You tackle Hallowell, and tackle it to-night, and you whack up on 'em then we'll see, an' not before. Understand?"

Circumstances favored the burglar. Everybody in the Hallowell house went out that night, except a servant girl, way up in the peak of the roof. She didn't count. The house was as dark as pitch. A big, burly figure, which until now had been merely a part and parcel of the darkness, now crept warily across the lawn. It was the burglar. He reached the basement window, and there was a slight clink of metal as he pulled forth a jimmy which was so brand new that it twinkled as he used it. He seemed to be an amateur, for he fumbled at the window for some time.

"Blame these things," he said, "I thought it would be easy work." Finally there was a snap, and the window was raised, and the man started to crawl in.

At that moment a firm hand was laid upon his shoulder, and he turned fearfully and hastily around. There stood Mixley with a revolver leveled at him. "So ho, my buck," said Mixley, "this is a new one on me." The man uttered an exclamation and turned incontinently to run. Mixley let him run across the lawn, and then fired—in the air. "Don't shoot—don't shoot," exclaimed the man, weakly, "I won't run away." He didn't.

A crowd came running up, among them a policeman. Mixley and the cop secured their man and marched him through the town down to the station. The burglar made no attempt to escape, but attempted all sorts of explanations to account for his predicament. Mixley and the cop merely laughed at them.

"That's all right, old man," said Mixley, getting a good straight hold on the prisoner, "that sort of stuff don't go down with Mixley—he's too old a bird."

"Here he is, cap," said Mixley, triumphantly, when they reached their destination. "He's a new one, I guess. I never saw him afore." As he said it, nevertheless, he took a tight hold on himself and silently chuckled.

And then it all came out. The big, burly ruffian abjectly removed his hat and a big wig and wiped the dirt off his face, and stood before them in his true character—as Hallowell, the unbeliever in private watchmen, the doubter of P. Mixley.

Hallowell explained—he didn't do it very well. He cut a sorry figure. Mixley explained. Mixley did it well—for a reporter was present to take down all that he said. Mixley felt very sore, he said, in his oracular way, that any of the residents of the town should doubt him. He said he proposed to make an example of Mr. Hallowell—he said, also, that he ought to have shot him on sight. Next time he would. At this juncture Hallowell made overtures. He employed P. Mixley as private watchman at ten dollars a month. He purchased a champagne supper for the captain and the whole force. He has been treating everybody everywhere, ever since—Mixley most of all. So Hallowell's test ended satisfactorily for everyone but Hallowell.

The next night the residences of Blenkinsop and Thomasson were entered and robbed of some choice silverware, by the same old gang. The morning after Blenkinsop and Thomasson made terms with Mixley—the one honest watchman in the town. Thereafter they were undisturbed.

And the burglaries keep on—but not among Mixley's clientele. And Mixley—he takes his left hand in his right and shakes it surreptitiously, and winks to himself and laughs.

He kept them guessing, all right, all right—did Mixley, the night watchman.

land. It is well known that a 40-acre irrigated farm is equivalent in production to a 100-acre nonirrigated farm. On that basis the Snake river reclamation will provide 6,200 farms, or, probably, homes for about 20,000 people, and the villages and cities will have from 25,000 to 50,000 more. And all this will come from the watering of only 20,000 acres! And before Uncle Sam is through with his big job he will turn water onto 100,000,000 acres.

In western Canada 200,000,000 acres of arable land to-day await the plow.

THE AMERICAN WOMAN.
French Writer Says She Plays a Most Important Part in Shaping World Politics.
A new role is attributed to the American woman by a writer in the Paris Gil Blas. In a letter from New York he says American women are no longer content with the money their husbands have toiled to make, but aspire to power, and are entering a new field—diplomacy. "The title of ambassador," says the writer, "is now worth as much as that of prince to the American woman, and that of attaché is equal to a German baron." Moreover, he finds that American women, while they marry foreign diplomats, never cease working for the interests of the land of their first affections. He takes the American woman seriously as a power, and goes on to note the position she holds today. In England Mrs. Chamberlain and Lady Curzon wield immense influence. In France the wives of Ribot and Clemenceau de Constant are called femmes de gouvernement of the future, for Ribot is a probable premier and Constant a coming minister of foreign affairs.

THE HOT-WATER CURE.

Nothing to Promptly Cure Short Sore Throat or Serious Congestion of the Lungs.

Hot water is not only a relief for many ills, but from its quick application many cures are effected. It is so easy to obtain hot water in these days of gas ranges that many a severe illness may be averted if the application is only given in time.

There is nothing so promptly cuts short congestion of the lungs or sore throat as hot water. The great thing is to apply it in time, and then to be thorough in the application.

For a toothache or neuralgia hot water will usually afford prompt relief. A towel folded several times and dipped into scalding hot water, and then wrung out, should be laid upon the painful part. The same treatment acts like magic in applying the heated towel to the stomach for colic.

Headaches most always yield to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and back of the neck.

A soft pack is the most effective method known for alleviating inflammation and getting rid of irritation in rheumatic joints. Toward relief every night a piece of flannel should be applied. This flannel should be saturated in brine and then wrapped around the affected joint or joints. The flannel should then be covered with a rubber or oil-silk bandage. Both should be kept on all night.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Now to put the limbs and the body together you stick a pin through both at the joints. Then fold in two one of the matches, so that its two parts may be as close together as possible. The match will be only partly broken, for some of the fibers of wood will bend, but not break.
Place the match thus bent in such a way that the two branches being united by a drop of sealing wax, the one to the arm, the other to the body, the part that makes a joining shall be in close contact with the pin. Do this with the other arm, and the two legs and the dancing jack will be finished.

Now let us give "Jack" some life. Pour a very thin layer of water into a plate, and lay your jack in it, the match side down. In a moment or two, the fibers of wood that are bent but not broken will absorb enough water to make them swell, and that will cause them to make an effort to straighten out. As they do this, they will give our little jack a series of jerky movements that are very amusing. He will throw out his arms and his legs just like the little fellows that are put together with strings.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Henry with an Opera Glass Looked Through Wrong End and Was Easily Captured.
The pet monkey of a German professor, having made his escape, climbed into a tree and defied all attempts to catch him.
Well knowing the imitative habits of the animal, his master hit on a curious plan to regain his pet.
He looked at the monkey through an opera glass, pointing the small end at him for some time, and then he retired to a short distance, leaving the opera glass on the ground.
The imitative monkey descended from the tree, and taking the opera glass, gazed after a similar manner, at his master, who seemed to the deluded ape to be half a mile distant.
The monkey, still looking through the same end of the opera glass, supposed his master was several hundred yards distant, when the latter, reaching out, secured the chain and led the victim of an optical illusion back to his cage.

One of the latest novelties that has come from the banks of the Walrus is a real live dog that can husk corn. This intelligent and industrious beast is the property of Joseph Diffebaugh, who lives on the Stevens' farm, near Andrews, Ill. He wasn't very careful in piling the corn and the husks, but he stripped the husks clean. This unique corn husker then followed the men to the field and did work right along with them, and seemed to enjoy his novel situation as much as the water spaniel does hunting.

Hot water is not only a relief for many ills, but from its quick application many cures are effected. It is so easy to obtain hot water in these days of gas ranges that many a severe illness may be averted if the application is only given in time.

There is nothing so promptly cuts short congestion of the lungs or sore throat as hot water. The great thing is to apply it in time, and then to be thorough in the application.

For a toothache or neuralgia hot water will usually afford prompt relief. A towel folded several times and dipped into scalding hot water, and then wrung out, should be laid upon the painful part. The same treatment acts like magic in applying the heated towel to the stomach for colic.

Headaches most always yield to the simultaneous application of hot water to the feet and back of the neck.

A soft pack is the most effective method known for alleviating inflammation and getting rid of irritation in rheumatic joints. Toward relief every night a piece of flannel should be applied. This flannel should be saturated in brine and then wrapped around the affected joint or joints. The flannel should then be covered with a rubber or oil-silk bandage. Both should be kept on all night.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A WOMAN PRESIDENT.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt Has a Dream Which, She Believes, Will Come True.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt is still confident that before the end of the century a woman will occupy the presidential chair. She is very much encouraged with recent progress of the woman's suffrage idea and hopes to see still further progress within the next few years. Mrs. Catt, who is now looked upon as the head of the movement, is a college woman and a lawyer. She can also cook, make her own dresses and trim her own hats and is a fine housekeeper. She has been a reporter and an editor. Born of revolutionary stock, she is a native of Ripon, Wis. She was educated in Iowa and was superintendent of schools at Mason City. The estates of hardship and suffering among self-supporting women encountered while a reporter first drew her attention to the subject of women's rights, and she went on the platform in their behalf. Ten years ago she spoke for the first time in this town on the suffrage question, and the young woman from out west electrified her audience. Today she shows in magnetic persuasiveness, clear logic and irresistible humor the ripe power which comes through experience.

Latest Craze in Quills.
Autograph quills are in vogue. They are formed of quills on which the names of contributors are written in indelible ink. The name of a celebrity is surrounded by those of lesser importance, in a square, circle or diamond.

Women and Jewels.
Jewels, rands, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds, and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Boschee's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its earlier stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure-all, but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get this reliable remedy at J. J. Rorach's. Price 25c and 50c.

Tubercular Infections.
There is no longer any doubt about pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) being an infectious disease. Consequently, hereafter, rooms or houses in Rhinelander vacated by a consumptive will be disinfected.

All persons suffering with the disease should avoid expectorating in any place where the spectrum may dry and become circulated by the wind and taken into the lungs of people breathing the air. They should expectorate either in a strong antiseptic solution or in cloths which are afterward burned.

Physicians will hereafter be required to report their cases of pulmonary tuberculosis.

THE DORF'S BLACK DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing his system to get clogged, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Theodor's Black Draught thoroughly cleanses the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Theodor's Black Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Burgess, Ark., May 25, 1901.
I cannot remember Theodor's Black Draught too highly. I have used it in my home all the time and have used it for the last few years. I never give it to my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up.
